TEST ACCIDENT TEARS BIG GASH IN BYRD PLANE

Radio Generator Propeller Flies Off in Air and Rips Big Hole in Fuselage.

DAY IS NEEDED TO MAKE REPAIRS

Great Crowds Watch Every Move of Contestants at Long Island. Monday Start Called Off

Garden City, N. Y., May 15.—(United News.)—The imp of the air bedeviled the chafing contestants in the New York-Paris race Sunday, and continued to demonstrate that fame by this route is a hazardous and heart-breaking business.

An accident in the air tore two great holes in the fuselage of the giant Fokker plane, America, when a two-foot propeller of the radio generator flew off its shaft like a ricocheting projectile.

Weather reports from mid-Atlantic then called off any possible start Monday because of a 1,000-mile storm area over the ocean.

Meanwhile public interest thrived upon the spectacle of two small ships and one big ship, manned by personalities as finely contrasting as their equipment and their variously tempered designs, trembling like race horses at the barrier of the greatest derby the world has yet known.

Grey clouds and white clouds tumbled across the sky and showers fell, but a crowd of football stadium proportions journeyed to Curtiss and Roosevelt fields.

The heartening pull of the paddock drew thousands to the "guest luncheon" to glimpse the fliers and to stare at the graceful mechanisms in which they are to swing into the eyes of the moving oblation that has unthinkingly and capriciously defeated their brave predecessors.

Test Flight Accident. The great tri-motor Fokker America, equipped with a mechanical engine, flew with deceptive ease, suffered the accident during a test flight.

The plane was cruising over Roosevelt and Curtiss fields at a height of 1,400 feet. The engine was working perfectly, George Noville, the pilot, said. Without warning, there was a detonation which he believed to be an explosion of either oil or gasoline.

Noville sat tense, but the huge plane kept upon its course. Then Noville feared a strut had been splintered. He landed quickly, "laying" the America to avoid an unnecessary strain.

Work Began at Once. Commander Richard E. Byrd, the north pole flyer who hopes to reach Paris without stopping in the America, ran onto the field, his fractured wrist still in a sling, and made an inspection. He found the gaping holes under the seats, and ordered it wheeled into the hangar.

Not a minute was lost, workmen began stripping off the bright fuselage immediately.

Byrd said the repairs can be made in a day.

The famous flyer's haste led observers to believe that he has decided to hop off as soon as the repairs are made, and to start on the great adventure.

Bert Acosta, who with Clarence Chamberlin recently set a new record for sustained flying, was aboard the America at the time of its accident.

The two are now on a basis of friendly rivalry.

'Jungle' Takes Stand Today In Film Trial

Kelly's "Official Gin Mixer" Called to Testify Against Employer.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 15.—(P.)—"Jungle," the Japanese house boy, dubbed by the prosecution as the "official gin mixer" in the apartment of Paul Kelly, screen actor on trial here for the death of Ray Raymond, will support the state's contention that Raymond was beaten to death in a fist fight in his apartment in which Kelly was the aggressor, over the affections of Dorothy Mackaye, actress wife of Raymond.

Kelly's defense is expected to be based on the contention that Raymond died from natural causes and not from the pummeling.

The houseboy, whose real name is Tono Yoku, dropped from sight the morning after the fight, which the state charges grew out of an ill-love affair between Mrs. Raymond and the film athlete and caused Raymond's death a few days later.

The houseboy was located only a few days ago.

BELLANCA PILOTS FORCE AGREEMENT TO NEW CONTRACT

Differences Between Fliers and Charles Levine Threatened to Disrupt Plans for Flight.

New York, May 15.—(P.)—Differences which arose today between Clarence D. Chamberlin and Lloyd Bertand, pilots of the Bellanca monoplane and Charles A. Levine, managing director of the Columbia Aircraft corporation threatened for a time to disrupt the proposed trans-Atlantic flight and resulted in a new contract being made between Levine and his pilots.

The monoplane remained in its hangar all day while the airman and the aircraft corporation official spent the day in conferences.

Insurance protection for the wives of the fliers, refusal of Bertand to agree to a year's contract to Levine and ambiguity in the language of the original contract concerning the responsibility of the fliers for possible damage to the plane were the principal points of difference.

Tonight it was announced that oral agreement concerning all matters of dispute had been reached and a new contract was to be written. It also was said unofficially that there was a question regarding disposition of the prize money, which is variously estimated between $40,000 and $100,000, and includes beside the $15,000 offered by the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce, numerous sums offered by manufacturers and a news syndicate.

Despite the misunderstanding all parties asserted that the Bellanca plane would attempt the New York-Paris flight, according to plans, and take off as soon as the weather permitted.

"The boys are going to fly to Paris and fly in the plane they now have," Clarence W. Nutt, attorney representing Bertand said tonight.

G. M. Bellanca, designer of the plane, refused to comment on the differences between the pilots and their sponsor and said:

"My only interest is in the flight and I am convinced that our plane will be the first to reach Paris."

HUGHES NOT ASKED TO AID IN PROBE OF RADICAL TRIAL

Boston, Mass., May 15.—(P.)—Gov. Alvan T. Fuller today denied a report that he planned to invite Charles Evans Hughes, of New York, to become chairman of a committee to review the evidence at the trial of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, radicals sentenced to death for murder.

The governor has given no indication as yet of his probable action in the face of numerous petitions for clemency for the two men.

While federal inspectors of the Boston postal district continued their efforts to trace the sender of a package of dynamite addressed to Gov. Fuller and intercepted yesterday at the Boston postoffice, the Sacco-Vanzetti defense committee and William G. Thompson, chief of the counsel for the condemned men, warned the public against taking the dynamite incident too seriously.

When public feeling and excitement rise to a certain point almost anything may be expected from second hands, whether crack-brained or of the more sinister type," Mr. Thompson said.

Richmond, Va., May 15.—(P.)—Assemblying more than a thousand delegates, the thirty-eighth annual convention of the national society of the Sons of the American Revolution will open here tomorrow morning in the hall of the house of delegates with Wilbert H. Judges for Opening Week
INITIAL WINNERS TO BE ANNOUNCED NEXT WEDNESDAY Of 'Right-Ad' Contest Named

With the judges meeting this afternoon to select winners of the 110 prizes for the first week of the $4,000 amateur ad writing contest of The Constitution, everything is being made ready so the winners can select the awards due them.

The judges are B. J. Wages, advertising manager of the A. G. Ruodes & Son, and Mrs. George Eckford, a prominent local advertising writer.

Before the winners can be announced, however, their eligibility must be carefully proved, for the rules provide that newspaper employees and ad men are not allowed to compete. The detail this will involve will not make possible the announcement of the winners before Wednesday.

Second Week's Competition. Readers need not delay in sending in their ads and ideas for the second week, which closes one week from today. The same number of awards will be made for the second week as for the first—that is, $50 in cash and 110 merchandise prizes.

Rules. 1.—The contest may be entered at any time merely by sending an advertising idea to the "Right-Ad" Editor, The Atlanta Constitution.

2.—Everyone may compete except professional ad writers and newspaper employees. This is an amateur contest for people who have never written advertising.

3.—Write about any one advertiser.

SIXTEEN THOUSAND TRAFFIC TOLL OVER SUNDAY IN NICARAGUA

Three Drivers Charged With Operating Cars Drunk; Two Other Reckless Driving Cases.

AUTO HITS WOMAN, SKULL FRACTURED

Reckless Driving Charged to Negro Who Figures in Collision Injuring Seven.

In eight automobile accidents in Atlanta Sunday, 14 motorists and two pedestrians were injured, three men were arrested on charges of operating cars while intoxicated and two others for operating machines in a reckless manner.

Of the 14 motorists injured, seven received their injuries in a collision Sunday afternoon at Glenn and Pryor streets. They were Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Benner, of 236 Harriett street; Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Wellman, of 1241 Sells avenue, and three negroes, J. T. Phillips and Arthur Walker, both of 213 Vine street, and Stewart Weems, of 415 Stonewall street.

Mr. and Mrs. Benner and Mrs. Wellman were riding in an automobile driven by Mr. Wellman, north on Pryor street, while the negroes rode in a sedan driven south on Pryor by Phillips. Wellman attempted to turn into Glenn street when the other automobile crashed into his machine, it was reported.

A case of reckless driving was lodged against Phillips by Patrolmen Hildebrand, Pope and Milam.

Father and Son Hurt. J. H. Garner, 39, of 260 Carroll street, and his 15 year old son, Clyde, were injured in an automobile accident Sunday afternoon. Clyde Garner was admitted to Grady hospital for observation by attendants who feared he suffered from brain concussion, while the elder Garner received a fractured wrist and minor lacerations.

W. R. Elliott, 24, of College Park, was bruised and shaken Sunday afternoon when the automobile in which he rode turned over twice, he told Grady hospital doctors. No report was made with police.

J. E. Goodwin, 44, of 770 Primrose street, was crushed about the legs in a collision Sunday afternoon between the machine he was driving and a car driven by T. H. Monroe, of R. F. D. No. 3, at South Pryor and Bass streets. A case of "drunk and operating an automobile" was made against Goodwin by Patrolmen Caldwell and Jones.

Collision on Bridge. A collision between two automobiles on the Magnolia street bridge resulted in injuries to J. C. Goodman, of Sandy Springs, Ga., when his machine was struck by a machine driven by G. L. Smith, of 232 Ormond street. Call Officers Anderson and Holland, who investigated, lodged a case of "drunk and reckless driving" against Goodman.

R. R. Reagan, of 358 McAfee street, drove an automobile which collided with one operated by a man on the 544 Holderness street, at the intersection of Luckie and Simpson streets. Reagan was locked up by Call Officers Anderson and Holland. A case of "drunk and reckless driving" was made against Reagan by Patrolmen Caldwell and Jones.

Troops Are Disarmed. Mr. Stinson expressed pleasure at the outcome of his mediation. He feels that the civil war is ended and that the troops of both sides are disarmed. A total of 6,200 rifles, 272 machine guns and 5,000 rounds of ammunition have been turned in.

In the American legation today, Mr. Stinson received the honorary degree of doctor of laws from the University of Granada. He plans to leave Managua at 8 o'clock tomorrow, sailing from Corinto at 1 o'clock for Hampton Roads. He will then proceed to Washington to report personally to President Coolidge.

Alarms Wheeler. This drift of affairs has finally alarmed Wheeler and last matters got out of hand, he has stepped in with a sharp warning that conscientious drys should have nothing to do with Smith.

"Al Smith is winking, sousing wet, Wheeler said. "He is too wet to hang out on the line to dry."

In that declaration Wheeler burned all bridges and made it clear that the Anti-Saloon league will tolerate no support of Smith by those whose allegiance it claims. The effect of this was objects to the word game because that word implies that someone must win.

The object of the problem is education, not competition. This problem is to test out the soundness of plans for the defense of the New England from a possible enemy. These plans are the common property of the army and navy and it is the duty of

in Asylum.

Manila, May 15.—(P.)—Immediate confinement in an asylum of Flor Intrenchado, insane self-proclaimed "emperor of the Philippines" was ordered today by General Nathorst, commander of the Philippine constabulary. The order was issued as one of several steps taken by the authorities to crush a revolt by followers of the deposed leader.

Surrounded by a large number of his armed followers, who assert that they will resist to the death any attempt to remove their sovereign to an asylum, Intrenchado at present is living peacefully in a bamboo "palace," which is nothing more than a thatched hut, a suburb of the city of Iloilo.

Constabulary officers declare that the greatest task must be exercised to prevent serious rebellion when the "emperor's" adherents, who are fanatical in their devotion to their chief, are told of the order and of the fact that his conviction in insanity charges had been upheld by the Philippine supreme court.

Intrenchado's followers made an attempt to seize upon the seizure of three towns in the province of Occidental Negros. In the resultant fighting, one policeman and two revolutionists were killed and 13 revolutionists were arrested. Trial of the latter on charges of sedition has been ordered by General Nathorst. Although the "emperor" took no part in the disturbances, and in fact did not know they were occurring, the authorities look upon him as being the unwitting spirit behind the movement.

FAIR ELECTION IN NICARAGUA

Managua, Nicaragua, May 15.—(P.)—As one of his last acts prior to his departure from Nicaragua, Henry L. Stimson, President Coolidge's personal representative in the Nicaraguan peace negotiations, proceeded today to Tipitapa, where under a huge black-thorn tree, he addressed General Moncada and his staff of two-score generals of the liberal forces, assuring them again that the United States was acting in the best interests of their country, in enforcing peace. He had given in the name of the president of the United States a solemn pledge that the United States would assure absolute and free elections in 1928 and that it would aid impartially in all its efforts to aid Nicaragua.

After the address, General Moncada and his staff proceeded to Managua through cheering lines of a thousand disarmed liberal soldiers, the majority of whom they greeted warmly. Thousands of spectators, huddled in red bandanas and shawls and waving flags, the liberal colors, cheered repeatedly, at times almost blocking the roads.

Managua Riot of Color. The liberal troops proceeded in orderly formation to Managua, which was a riot of color.

The conservatives tacitly allowed the liberals to celebrate virtually unmolested, and the liberal troops marched under arches of triumph made by bending palms across the road from which red streamers and Nicaraguan flags hung. All were smiling and happy, apparently considering this a victory of peace.

Both sides seemingly rejoiced that organized warfare has ceased, and the soldiers are eager to listen to their homes for the purpose of planting the final crop before rain prevents.

WHEELER WHIPS DRYS INTO LINE TO FIGHT SMITH

Dry Head Is Alarmed by Flirting of N. Y. Governor With Some Dry Politicians.

WHEELER DENIES REPORT HE'LL QUIT

Washington, May 15.—Reports that he is seriously ill and is contemplating early retirement from his post as general counsel for the Anti-Saloon League were denied today by Wayne B. Wheeler, and described as "unmitigated bunk" and part of "a wet campaign of attempted frightfulness to intimidate public officials and discredit the league."

The wet campaign, according to Wheeler, is directed against the efforts of the league to secure the permanent appointment of Roy A. Haynes as prohibition commissioner.

"The wets lie when they say the league is making the fight for personal reasons," asserted Mr. Wheeler in his statement today. "The record shows that we have fought persistently for a capable enforcement officer who believes in the law he is to enforce. We endorsed Major Haynes because he filled these qualifications and has the confidence of the rank and file of the dry forces."

GOODYEAR COURT FIGHT IS SETTLED

Independent Board of Directors Representing All Classes of Stockholders To Be Re-elected

New York, May 15.—(P.)—Litigation involving the management of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company was settled today at a conference here of parties concerned.

Formal announcement of the conclusion of the long controversy was signed by Clarence Dillon, of Dillon, Read and Company; John Sherwin, of Cleveland, Ohio, and F. A. Zierling, as well as their attorneys for record.

An agreement satisfactory to all concerned was reached through the mediation of Owen D. Young, the statement said, and "it is hoped and expected that all causes for past friction and dissatisfaction have been permanently removed."

"The parties will cooperate with the company," the statement continued, "in formulating a plan to provide for accrued dividends upon the preferred stock and to adjust the sinking fund and asset ratio provisions in connection with the preferred stock. The consummation of such plan, however, rests with the stockholders."

Dillon, Read and Company will continue to act as bankers for the company and will offer soon for public subscription an issue of $60,000,000 in 5 per cent bonds, proceeds of which are to be devoted, to retirement of the 8 per cent first mortgage bonds, the 8 per cent debentures and the 8 per cent prior preference stock issued in connection with the reorganization of 1921.

"An independent board of directors, representative of all classes of stockholders," is to be selected. Dillon, Read and Company and John Sherwin will be represented on this board, whose tenure "for a reasonable period of time," is to be assured.

No change in the management of the Goodyear company is contemplated. N. P. W. Littlefield will remain as president.

AMERICAN FLEET THREATENS NAVY WILL STAGE GREAT SHAM BATTLE Capture of New York Today

BY JOHN STEELE.
(By Leased Wire to The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.)

On Board Battleship California, New York, May 15.—Tomorrow morning at dawn the fleet which has been enjoying the hospitality of the good burghers of New York for the last fortnight leaves New York harbor and puts to sea to threaten the safety of the city whose guest it has been.

Its plan is to land hostile forces somewhere on the Atlantic coast and threaten the nation's greatest city with capture and perhaps destruction. Of course, it is all a game, or as the navy prefers to put it, a problem.

Likely places are known, of course, but it is the duty of the navy to try to fool the army and put a force ashore large enough to dig in and hold fast until reinforcement can arrive and the main American army can be engaged and defeated when the great cities of the east will lie at the enemy's mercy.

Of course, the landing will be "constructive," by which it is meant the invading army will be destroyed.

The navy to try and find a flaw. It will be the duty of the navy, therefore, to try to fool the army, which, with a small naval force, is trying to prevent a landing.

In theory the problem is the enemy fleet which is represented by a great concentration of over a hundred and twenty ships which has wiped the American fleet off the seas and is prepared to land an invading army.

An American army, hastily assembled and with the slightest naval support consisting of only a few scouts and lightships, is trying to prevent landing. Likely places are known, of course, but it is the duty of the navy to try to fool the army and put a force ashore large enough to dig in and hold fast until reinforcement can arrive and the main American army can be engaged and defeated when the great cities of the east will lie at the enemy's mercy.

GEORGIA EDITORS ARRIVE AT BOSTON

Boston, Mass., May 15.—(AP)—More than 100 sea-going members of the Georgia Press association, on a cruise from Savannah to this city, arrived today on the steamship City of Chattanooga and immediately left by special train for Portsmouth, N. H., where they were to spend a number of days of entertainment which lasted well into the night.

The day's program included a luncheon at Hampton Beach, where the party was welcomed in the name of Governor Spaulding, a sight-seeing tour of the navy yard and other points of interest, and a banquet at the Hotel Buckingham in Portsmouth in the evening.

Arrangements for entertaining the visitors had been completed by Portsmouth citizens long before their arrival. A special train arrived, and they were immediately taken on an automobile tour of the New Hampton Ocean boulevard to Hampton Beach, where Governor Spaulding, Secretary of State Harold Phillips, and other officials were waiting to greet them.

The afternoon sight-seeing tour included a visit to several of the well-known colonial mansions in the city, and to the building in which the Russo-Japanese peace conference was held in 1905.

Former Mayor F. W. Hartford, publisher of the Portsmouth Herald, acted as tourmaster at the banquet in the evening, where the Georgia editors were met by the city's business men.

After the banquet the party left Portsmouth for Boston, where tomorrow they will tour the city by bus, visiting the chamber of commerce, the state house and other points.

The morning program also includes a luncheon at the Hotel Copple Plaza, as guests of the Southern Club of Boston, and a dinner given by the American Mutual Alliance in the evening.

On Tuesday forenoon the visitors will visit the battlefields of Lexington and Concord, sailing for home Tuesday afternoon.

Wives of several of the editors and a number of Georgia business men are included in the party.

FLIERS HELD UP AGAIN BY BIG OCEAN STORM

REWARD OF $25,000 OFFERED FOR FLIERS

New York, May 15.—(AP)—Rodman Wanmaker, who is sponsoring Commander Richard E. Byrd's proposed New York-to-Paris flight, tonight offered a reward of $25,000 for the finding of Nungesser and Goh, the French fliers who have been missing since they left Paris a week ago in an attempt to fly to New York. It was announced that the reward would be paid to anyone who found the fliers, whether alive or dead.

Bertand, who will pilot it together.

And the tiny single-seater, Spirit of St. Louis, in which Captain Charles Lindbergh came streaking from the Pacific coast in two hops, seemed also to please its lucky, youthful "Lone Wolf" aspirant for trans-Atlantic honors.

The Spirit of St. Louis is the hummingbird entry into the race. With the slender Lindbergh folded into its unbelievably tiny cockpit, it can show its diminutive tail at the take-off, and after the swallow or the eagle enters, and speed toward Paris like a bullet, and with almost as little extra equipment.

While the Fokker has both enclosed fuselages and powerful radio set, and the Bellanca a double cockpit and a radio equipment of sorts, Lindbergh will fly with his instruments on the dash, a bottle of water swinging at his side and only the eyes of salt water mariners to catch reports of his progress.

This appealed to the dramatic sense of the thousands at Curtiss field Sunday, and Lindbergh and his pilot's share of attention.

NEWFOUNDLAND REPORTS OF FRENCHMEN PERSIST.

St. John's, N. F., May 15.—(AP)—Reports received here today that an airplane with a badly running motor passed over Ocean Pond last Sunday, strengthened the belief that Captains Charles Nungesser and Francois Goh, missing French trans-Atlantic fliers, reached Newfoundland on their attempted Paris-to-New York flight.

Ocean Pond is approximately 25 miles southwest of Harbor Grace, where three persons reported sighting, and several reported hearing an airplane on that date. It is four miles south of Whitbourne, where another person yesterday reported that he heard an airplane motor, and an explosion in the air last Monday morning.

A course projected from Harbor

Grace and Ocean Pond would reach the open sea within 50 miles.

The latest report of what may have been the "White Bird," piloted by Nungesser was contained in a message received by Inspector-General Hutchings, of the Newfoundland constabulary, from Sergeant Dwyer, stationed at Bay Roberts, at the head of Conception bay.

POSTMASTER GENERAL SCOUTS FLIER REPORTS.

Washington, May 15.—(AP)—Postmaster General New, in a statement today, placed little credence in reports from Nova Scotia and Newfoundland that the missing trans-Atlantic airplane "White Bird" had been seen or heard over that territory last Monday morning.

He compared these reports with those received when Air Mail Pilot Ames was missing in the mountains of Pennsylvania and declared "no better instance of the fallibility of human testimony could be afforded than the night on which he met his death."

Mr. New said, "from people in different sections who professed to have either seen or heard Ames' plane on the night on which he met his death. Every inch of the territory from which the reports came was thoroughly searched, he said, until it became 'plainly apparent that the missing plane was not in that neighborhood, and eleven days after Ames' disappearance the plane was found where it had crashed on the highest ridge on the line of flight."

Authenticity of the styles militarily finds at Frohsin's is as much the product of newness as it is of expert buying. The styles at this store are new and fresh because new shipments arrive every day from the New York marts. It is this same desire to show the newest creation that makes Frohsin's styles but one fast train's time behind New York. Every little trend, if it is keeping with the discriminating tastes of the patrons of this establishment, is immediately reflected in its showings.

Rountree

Right here in Atlanta contestants will find one of the most complete stocks of leather and traveling goods in the country. People from other cities—from New York and Chicago, where one would expect to find stocks of luggage many times as large as in a city the size of Atlanta—come to the Rountree Trunk and Bag company for their traveling needs.

Featuring the "factory-to-you" policy, the Rountree Trunk and Bag company is naturally in a position to sell luggage at a lower price than it could otherwise. While this establishment does not manufacture the ladies' purses and other leather novelties, it stocks it offers the very best. Thirty-two years of experience in the purchase of leather enables this company to make particularly wise purchases.

GIRL OBJECTS TO KISSING MEN VISITING MOTHER

Omaha, Neb., May 15.—(United News.)—Testimony that Mrs. Mary Pietrygo made her daughter kiss a man who called at the Pietrygo home and charged 25 cents each for the kisses, was given in a separation suit here.

The girl, Jessie, is 15 years old and said she didn't like her mother's "business venture."

Philibosian's Lower Prices Not a Theory But Purchasers Find It an Absolute Fact

Wisdom of Paying Cash Is Demonstrated by the Remarkable Values Offered by the South's Most Beautiful Furniture Store.

Selling for cash means selling for LESS. This is not a theory, but just as the cash grocery and cash drug store have proved it, so has Stephen Philibosian demonstrated that home furnishings sold for cash can be sold for remarkably lower prices.

Any one planning the purchase of home furnishings of any kind needs only to do a little shopping to realize that although Stephen Philibosian, Inc., never conducts a special sale the greatest values in home furnishings are obtainable at this beautiful store. When you walk through the place you will see every piece of merchandise marked in plain figures. One price to all always is the policy.

And when you buy you will not only know you have received exceptional value, but you will know that no other person regardless of his or her financial standing, race or creed could buy the same merchandise for less money.

What Philibosian first opened to the public he announced three distinct policies: First: "Everything strictly cash." Second: "Never a special sale." Third: "One price to all." That he has adhered to this policy and that the public appreciates such consistent merchandising is best proved by the growing patronage this store has enjoyed since opening its doors to the public.—(adv.)

Only radio communication remained tonight as the means for the outside world to know the fate of marooned persons. Darkness prevented further airplane flights which today recorded received almost every day from the operators stationed on coast guard cutters here kept the ether humming with messages about the rescue work.

The Louisiana National Guard and other rescue agencies also had concentrated boats in the lower part of the Atchafalaya river.

Windsor is preparing for an immense rush of tourists, Americans, of course. Several new hotels are being erected, and many roadhouses are reported ready to throw open their doors although their status as legitimate drinking places has not been determined. It is probable that the cabaret and roadhouse will be tabooed, unless they can arrange to have a few hotel rooms upstairs. Then they become nonpublic, according to the government classification.

Looks for "Huge Crowd."

Chief Constable Daniel Thompson looks for a "huge crowd" on the first few days after the opening of the government service between Detroit and Windsor will be maintained at five-minute intervals. A second trip to Walkerville operated every 15 minutes. What American tourists may expect in the way of prices may be gleaned from the following:

The government stores hope to sell a case of 24 bottles of beer for $2.50—about 10 cents a bottle for 6 to 9 per cent alcoholic content.

A "fifth" of a gallon of wine (25 ounces) is expected to cost around $2.85. A 40-ounce bottle, more than a full American quart, will cost about $5.

Bonson will be slightly higher, while Scotch will cost an estimated $6.50 for the 40-ounce bottle. There will be about 40 brands of Scotch.

One gin will run around $4 per 40-ounce bottle.

COMMODITY PRICES DECLINED IN APRIL

Washington, May 15.—(AP)—Wholesale prices of commodities showed a further decline during April, the labor department announced today, the weighted index number for 404 representative articles registering 144.2 as against 145.3 for March, a decline of .34 of one per cent.

Petroleum, petroleum products, and anthracite coal caused a decline in the food group of 4.1-1.1 per cent. Building materials decreased one per cent and minor decreases took place in metals and miscellaneous commodities. Significant advances were shown by farm products, foods, clothing materials, and chemicals and drugs.

Of the 404 commodities, increases in price were shown for $8, while 127 declined.

AVERAGE STUDENT SLEEPS TOO LITTLE SAYS SCIENTIST

Chicago, May 15.—(AP)—The longer one stays in bed, the more quietly he rests while there, the longer it takes him to wear off the habit of relaxation and the better he withstands the strain of the day's activities.

This is the conclusion of Professor H. M. Johnson, of Mellon Institute, Pittsburgh, after conducting sleep experiments on 18 college students. He reported his observations at the midwestern experimental psychology conference at Northwestern university today.

The average student, Professor Johnson said, expended the greatest quietude one and a half hours after retiring. The experiments, conducted over a 60-day period, also disclosed that the average student does not spend as much time in bed as he should and that when he does retire he doesn't rest soundly.

Il Duce Seeks To Learn Secrets of Herculeaneum

GIGANTIC ENGINEERING WORK BEGINS TODAY

Naples, Italy, May 15.—(AP)—Mussolini will make a further bid for the title of modern miracle man tomorrow, when work will begin under direction of fascist engineers, on an archaeological project heretofore considered impossible—digging the ancient city of Herculeaneum from under 100 feet of volcanic tuff and crushed lava. Herculeaneum was overwhelmed in 79 A. D. by the same burst of Vesuvius which destroyed its sister city, Pompeii.

King Victor Emmanuel will inaugurate the excavation which is universally adjudged by archaeologists as one of the most ambitious undertakings in the history of mankind's perennial passion for delving into the secrets of the past.

Numerous efforts were made over a period of more than two centuries to probe deeply into the secrets of the city, which tradition says was founded by the Greek hero after whom it was named, with such little success that the project appeared hopeless until fascism's duce began to study ways and means.

Having been, under the Romans, a summer resort for the wealthy, instead of a commercial town like Pompeii, it has been believed to be far richer than its neighbor in artistic and intellectual treasures, particularly of the Greek and pre-Roman periods, gathered in collection by the Roman mariners.

KING BEN PLANS COLONY DEFENSE

Benton Harbor, Mich., May 15.—(AP)—In an attempt to preserve the life of his nephew, King Ben, a witness stand in the state's suit here today, the king is being urged to throw the cult into receivership and ultimately bring about its dissolution.

W. J. Bernard, Purnell's personal attorney, said that his client will take the stand sometime during the hearing, along with more than 100 witnesses. The number the state claims to have in receivership.

Appearance of the cult leader on the stand will mark the first time he has placed himself open to questioning regarding the affairs of his colony, less in recent years by numerous legal controversies. Purnell did not testify at a suit for accounting brought by John H. H. and his wife, former members of the colony, and neither did he submit to questioning when arranged on charge of criminal assault on girl members of the cult in the territory he was borne to the courtroom in an ambulance and carried before the bar on a stretcher.

The state contends that the colony poses as a religious order only as a cloak for other practices, and thus seeks its dissolution, but colony leaders declare that the cult is a religious organization, not subject to action contemplated in the present suit.

The state, represented chiefly by George E. Nichols, who will serve as a special prosecutor, promises as its first witness a Kentucky woman who claims that she is Purnell's wife from the age of 12 as a "boy preacher." Plans of the defense for combatting this promised testimony have not been revealed.

Wet Ontario Getting Ready For Dry Yankees

Windsor, Ont., May 15.—(United News.)—It won't be long now before Americans will drink liquor in Ontario province, with legal sanction.

The Canadians will avoid the American rush because they will receive their liquor carous Wednesday and Thursday. Only Canadians, residents of the border cities—Ford, Sandwich, Windsor and Walkerville—can get the cards at that time.

But about June 1, when the Ontario liquor stores open officially, the Americans may join the rush, get their carous and liquor, and repair to a non-public place to celebrate.

All Must Have Cards.

The cards will be similar to a doctor's prescription, only they do not specify the amount of liquor purchasable. An applicant's description, age, weight, height and such, will be placed on the card's face. For two dollars a resident obtains a card for a year, and a tourist—who includes Americans—for three months.

A tourist applying must give his Canadian destination. He must name a hotel, or some address in Canada, to which he is bound. This will suffice for issue.

There will be five government stores in the border cities, a few within a stone's throw of the ferry from Detroit.

Windsor is preparing for an immense rush of tourists, Americans, of course. Several new hotels are being erected, and many roadhouses are reported ready to throw open their doors although their status as legitimate drinking places has not been determined. It is probable that the cabaret and roadhouse will be tabooed, unless they can arrange to have a few hotel rooms upstairs. Then they become nonpublic, according to the government classification.

Georgia Is Ideal State, Says Lindsey Hopkins Following Long Tour

System of Good Roads All That Is Needed To Put Section in Fore- front, Capitalist Asserts

As beautiful and progressive as California is, as lovely and picturesque as the Hawaiian islands, with their luxuriant fruits and ornamental trees and foliage and wonderful climate, they have nothing on Georgia.

These were the words of Lindsey Hopkins, director of the Sixth Federal Reserve bank, and leading capitalist, upon his return, accompanied by Mrs. Hopkins from a seven weeks' tour which included Honolulu, capital and commercial center of the Hawaiian islands.

The trip, covering 14,000 miles that carried them through 12 states, was one of pleasure and rest. They visited all points of interest along their itinerary, which embraced the states of Georgia, Alabama, Louisiana, Mississippi, Texas, Arizona, New Mexico, California, Colorado, Kansas and Missouri.

Returning through the south to San Francisco and back, Mr. Hopkins declared that he noted marked signs of development from the fertile lands of the south under cultivation to an almost endless chain of industries.

Good Roads Needed.

He says that Georgia, with a soil adapted to the cultivation of anything that can be grown in the United States, with the most beautiful supply of natural resources and advantages of any state in the union, with its abundance of Anglo-Saxon labor, its unlimited hydroelectric power resources, with its great transportation and banking facilities, its ports, etc., needs only one more requisite to make it stand out as the greatest state in the union.

"That," he declared, "is a network of good roads similar to those in North Carolina and California."

"If Georgia could only see what good roads have done for North Carolina and California, it would immediately inaugurate a program of good road building and continue it at a speed for the next decade. The cost would be secondary in the minds of the people. Such a program would yield all Georgia a dividend far greater than would any other development."

"I favor a five-cent gasoline tax and a bond issue under right conditions to bring about a system of good roads in Georgia second to none in the United States, as well as a highway department entirely divorced from politics and under the most efficient management obtainable."

Atlanta Well Known.

He says that few people realize what a great asset Coca-Cola is, and has been to Atlanta and to the entire south.

"The name of Coca-Cola is constantly before you through the company's international program of advertising. I noted a great increase in the sale of the company's product, and its stock is numbered among the best investments of bankers, business men and other investors."

"Atlanta's national advertising program is commanding the attention of the entire nation."

Before sailing on the Matsonia from San Francisco, Mr. and Mrs. Hopkins visited Roosevelt dam, Arizona, and while there witnessed the burning of De Pinedo airplane as he was preparing to hop off on his flight, which carried an air itinerary for four months, and which he had passed all the South American countries before the accident.

While in Honolulu he interviewed leading bankers and business men, who, he declared, were optimistic as regards conditions in Hawaii. He made an analysis before the Chinese Club of Honolulu.

"The natives are busy and business activity is noted in all sections of the islands," he said. "New industries are opening up, and their civic, educational and religious progress, I was told, has shown considerable advancement. Their trade with the United States is growing steadily and political conditions there are normal."

Mr. and Mrs. Hopkins barely escaped being caught in the disastrous cyclone, which struck Kansas during their return trip.

"We were just one hour behind the Kansas cyclone and one hour ahead of the Arkansas storm," he said.

Drops Pie On Foot, Dinner Interrupted, Rushed to Hospital

Injured Sunday when she dropped a hot pie on her foot, Mrs. Rosie Roberts, of 647 Travis street, left off serving her husband's dinner and went to Grady hospital for first aid treatment.

Mrs. Roberts told attendants that a lengthy Sunday morning sermon had thrown her dinner behind schedule. Hurrying across the kitchen with the steaming pie her foot slipped, she said.

Doctors gave her first aid treatment for scalds and she was dismissed.

LAWRENCEVILLE HOTEL TO BE OPENED SOON

Lawrenceville, Ga., May 15.—(Special.)—Work on the Lawrenceville hotel is progressing rapidly, and the owners hope to have it ready for occupancy by the middle of June. The building has been leased to A. T. Green, local resident.

The structure will be steam-heated and of 24 rooms, 18 will be equipped with running water. A number of rooms will also have connecting baths. The building, formerly the Hotel Ewing, was destroyed by fire about the first of the year.

REV. LOUIS A. MAYO RESIGNS AT DECATUR

Decatur, Ga., May 15.—(Special.)—The resignation of the Rev. Louis A. Mayo as pastor of the First Christian church in Decatur is announced.

The Rev. Mr. Mayo resigned, effective June 16, to follow up his studies after completing a special course at Emory university. No action has been taken on a successor.

Rev. Mayo was called to the Decatur pastorate from North Carolina in 1925. A special committee of the official board of the church gave out the following statement concerning his work:

"The membership of the Decatur Christian church has more than doubled during the ministry of Mr. Mayo. His splendid pulpit ability has not only been of interest to the members of his congregation but has attracted the attention of many other citizens of Decatur. He is held in the highest esteem by the members of his congregation, who regret his resignation."

WEST END CHARTER DEBATE TONIGHT

Arguments pro and con on the proposed new city charter for Atlanta will be heard tonight when Judge E. C. Kontz, opposing the project, and Horace Russell, proponent of the action, debate the subject before the West End Business association in the community club, Lee and Gordon streets. The meeting will get underway at 8 o'clock. An invitation to the public has been extended.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., To Dedicate Memorial Chapel at Spelman Seminary

Interior and exterior views of the memorial chapel on the campus of Spelman seminary which will be dedicated this week. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., will be the principal figure at the dedication service.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., will be the principal figure in an elaborate program at Spelman college, this city, on Thursday evening, the occasion being the dedication of the beautiful chapel just completed as a memorial to Mr. Rockefeller's mother and aunt. Erected with funds from the estates of Mrs. Laura Spelman Rockefeller and Miss Lucy Maria Spelman, and named "The Sisters' Chapel" in their memory, the building will be formally presented by Mr. Rockefeller, who will turn over the keys to Trevor Annett, of New York, president of the institution's board of trustees.

Addresses will be delivered by Dr. James M. Stiffler, of Evanston, Ill.; Rev. James B. Adams, of Brooklyn, and Dr. John L. White, of Anderson, S. C. The dedicatory words will be pronounced by Dr. Charles W. Daniel, pastor of the First Baptist church of Atlanta and a trustee of Spelman college, and the Rev. Carter Helm Jones, pastor of the Second Baptist church, will offer the prayer of consecration. A large and representative audience, including many of the city's most prominent people, is expected to witness the dedication.

Large Party.

Mr. Rockefeller will be accompanied by a large party from the east, including Mrs. Rockefeller, William Travers Jerome Jr., Mrs. Catherine S. Westfall, and Mrs. George W. Coleman of New York; Mrs. Mary C. Reynolds, of Boston, and others. This party will spend Thursday morning inspecting the college and observing its work. Thursday noon they will be entertained by the president of Spelman, Miss Lucy Hall Tandy, at a luncheon at which there will be present also a few Atlanta guests. At 10 o'clock Friday morning there will be a meeting of the board of trustees of the college.

Negro Labor.

Henz, Reid and Adler designed the building and supervised its construction, practically all of which was done by negro labor under the direction of W. T. Courtney, for many years superintendent of the Spelman buildings and grounds. Conspicuous in the furnishing is a fine pipe organ, built and installed at a cost of $15,000. The total cost of the building and furnishings was $182,500. A handsome bronze tablet in the main vestibule of the chapel bears the following inscription:

"The Sisters' Chapel was built with funds from the estates of Laura Spelman Rockefeller and Lucy Maria Spelman, for many years loyal friends of Spelman college, and daughters of Lucy Henry Spelman after whom the college was named. May the beautiful Christian spirit of these sisters and their lives of unselfish service ever be an inspiration to those who cross this threshold. Anna Domini, 1926."

Standing in the entrance of the college grounds and immediately in the foreground as one enters the new chapel sets for the institution a fine keynote of simple beauty, dignity and reverence. It is also a conspicuous and valuable addition to the architectural wealth of the city.

URBAN LEAGUE WEEKLY BULLETIN

The Atlanta school of social work has been fortunate in securing the services of Forrester B. Washington, at present executive secretary of the Arnsperg association, of Philadelphia, to take up the work as director of the school. Washington was recently called by the mayor's committee of Detroit to assist in a study made there of the Detroit negro. This is the second study of the negro of Detroit in which he has been a factor. Governor Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, appoints this same man to direct a study of the negro in Pennsylvania. Splendid reports have been made out of these situations and a better understanding of the negro's background and a program for his development have been brought about.

Washington will not only be a valuable asset to the school of social work but to Atlanta as a whole.

The Butler Street Y. M. C. A. is making a special drive for $6,000 in order to wipe out a deficit that overhangs the organization and impedes its progress. Benjamin Jefferson Davis is the local chairman of this drive and is putting sufficient energy in it to make it a grand success. The Central Y. M. C. A. spent some $3,000 last year in its effort to renovate and reconstruct the building. It promises to do more if the colored population will wipe out this deficit. Evidently the colored people are accepting this challenge.

The new executive secretary of the Atlanta Urban league has not yet been named. The present executive secretary is moving to Pittsburgh to take up similar work there on or about June 1. It is expected that a man of high character and well trained in social work will be found by that time to succeed the present executive.

The development of the action, debate the subject before the West End Business association in the community club, Lee and Gordon streets. The meeting will get underway at 8 o'clock. An invitation to the public has been extended.

Miss Fessie W. Bell sponsored a chicken dinner for the Morris Brown university million dollar drive May 7, at the Butler Street Y. M. C. A. Much credit is due to the night cooking class of the Booker T. Washington High school, instructed by Mrs. T. C. Jones, who prepared the dinner in grand style. The dinner was made possible by the Fulton bakery, curb market, Service market, Harrison & Murray, Kelly Grocery company, Minor's meat market, and others who gave donations in the form of unprepared foodstuffs. The office workers on Auburn avenue deserve mention for their contribution to the success of the dinner by patronage.

Organization for the Greater Decatur Chamber of Commerce campaign next week will be perfected at a meeting of the campaign executive committee in the Elbie tea room at 7 o'clock Monday evening. It was announced Sunday by J. Howell Green, general chairman.

The organization will make an intensive four-day canvass, May 23-26, to secure a budget of $10,000 for development and advertising to keep pace with the growing need of the city for chamber of commerce service during the next year.

The committee in charge of campaign preparations, under leadership of Chairman Green, is composed of M. A. Allison, Dr. W. S. Ansley, C. H. Blount, W. G. Bryant, F. E. Green, Dr. J. C. Daniel, Dr. W. S. Elkin, Dr. Louis Estes, H. F. George, M. H. George, Bayne Gibson, G. M. Greeley, R. C. Henderson, J. A. McCarty, Charles D. McKinney, W. C. McLain, C. A. Mathews, Leon O'Neal, Robert Ramspeck, F. H. Roberts, C. P. Roberts, M. Sanders, E. Boyd Sutton, A. S. Turner and George H. Woods.

Campaign headquarters have been established in the Decatur Bank and Trust Company building through courtesy of the campaign chairman, who is president of the bank.

"Decatur needs an adequate finance chamber of commerce to carry her fair share of the work for development of the Atlanta metropolitan area and to render the service necessary for prospective new citizens and industrial enterprises," Mr. Green said. "We are confident that this appeal will secure the necessary funds to keep us going forward on a satisfactory and effective basis."

LAWRENCEVILLE ROAD NEARS COMPLETION

Lawrenceville, Ga., May 15.—(Special.)—Only two miles on the Lawrenceville-Decatur highway in Gwinnett county are incomplete and the county officials are rushing the work on that stretch to complete it by June 1. There are 12 miles of hard surfaced road which is being traveled without a detour to Carroll's store. Until the two remaining miles are complete cars detour at Carroll's store and come back onto the highway at Tucker.

The state highway department let the contract for top-surfacing from the Gwinnett county line to Decatur Friday and it is said the DeKalb officials hope to get their stretch finished in the near future. This will be a source of delight to the tourist in this section, as it will give them a hard surfaced road into Atlanta.

Health and Diet Advice

BY DR. FRANK McCOY

Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in regard to Health and Diet Will Be Answered by Dr. McCoy, Who Can Be Addressed in Care of The Constitution.

(Copyright, 1927, for The Constitution.)

During the past 15 years the farmers have steadily increased the acreage given over to the raising of alfalfa. They have found that cattle and horses grow better if given some alfalfa every day along with their grain and hay.

Cows used for milk producers are often fed only a small amount of grain or beet pulp, and nine-tenths of their food is from such feeding, and the milk is found to be especially rich in vitamins. Milk usually contains only a negative amount of iron, but this is increased to some extent under such feeding, as alfalfa is especially rich in iron.

For years chemists have been working to prepare a food made out of alfalfa which would be suitable for human consumption. The fault lies in the fact that alfalfa in its dried state does not have a very agreeable taste, and so the foods which have been placed upon the market containing this leafy vegetable have been made with too much sugar.

For several years I have been advising my patients to eat alfalfa, if they could get it fresh, as it makes a very delicious salad or addition to a combination salad.

At a recent meeting of a dental convention, one of the doctors recommended the use of alfalfa for developing strong teeth. He said, in part: "Alfalfa is especially rich in vitamins and iron, which are important in keeping the teeth firm and strong. The American people should eat 15 per cent more vegetables for luncheon and dinner and more dairy products. The introduction of alfalfa as a food for humans would be a great boon. This may be developed in a very short time, and the scientist who produces food from alfalfa will do the world a vast service."

It is interesting to note that dentists are playing a large part in educating the people in dietetic science. No important convention ever takes place but what several papers are read emphasizing the value of diet in the growing of teeth. Pyorrhea and trench mouth are recognized by the dentist as having their start in hyperacidity of the stomach, and to cure this trouble, good food combinations are recommended.

The individual dentist, and also those who charge the dental corporations, should be commended upon their attitude toward the food question which could be copied by physicians in other cases with rich benefits to suffering humanity.

Milton C. Work's Pointer On How To Play Bridge

Milton C. Work, the international bridge authority, will answer your auction bridge questions. A stamped self-addressed envelope must accompany each request for replies.

The pointer for today is:

A DECLARER, BEFORE PLAYING EITHER FROM DUMMY OR CLOSED HAND, SHOULD PLAN HIS CAMPAIGN.

In these articles I repeatedly have urged a Declarer to plan his campaign as soon as he sees dummy's cards. He then knows for the first time the exact composition of the combined hands, and is able to formulate the method of play most apt to produce the desired result.

To illustrate this principle, and also to afford an interesting and instructive test for my readers, I am using a new scheme this week. Each day a Bridge deal will be given, and readers will be asked to bid it and play the first trick as they would at the table. Each hand should be considered as it would be in a real game, and the bidding and play should not be influenced by the location of cards which would not be known to a player in an actual game; in other words, there are not double-dummy problems with all cards exposed, but are questions which confront a player in a real game. On the day succeeding the announcement of each problem, the answer with full explanation will appear.

Every reader is urged to fill up his answer slip each day this week, and compare results the next day, and to induce his friends, club mates, and especially the members of his own family to fill slips also. It is especially interesting to keep a score and at the end of the week to see who has the most correct answer slips.

Today's Problems.

In the following deal, look at the hand of each player and determine what you think he should bid in his turn, in that way you will decide what the final contract should be. Then decide what four cards should be played on the first trick and fill in pencil on the answer slip given below.

It provides for payment of sums ranging downward from $7,500 in case of death resulting from certain accidents, heavy cash sums for permanent injuries, and $10 weekly indemnity for disability resulting from the specified mishaps.

A train wreck, a crash of cars, the crushing wheels of a speeding automobile, or a burning building may leave you a victim of the accident when you least expect misfortune.

Sophy Tancred's Husbands

By ELIZABETH YORK MILLER.

Installment XXXI.

A FOOLISH CONFESSION.

There didn't seem to be anybody who might have noticed this special ly, and Sophy smiled when she thought of all the elaborate precautions which had hedged about the beginning of this adventure. Gradually she had become a little infected with Alan's hedonistic creed, that nothing mattered but themselves.

They had come to a tentative agreement on the subject of the proposed elopement. It would have to be sudden, of course, and she would tell him what she had decided the night of the masked ball. He did not greatly fear that decision, now, for there was a promise in Sophy's eyes, and a desperate expression about her lips which told how the strain was wearing her down.

And now the Villa Mona. Piers? Yes, it seemed he had returned about half an hour ago; he had been asking for her; ringing up Mrs. Brant to find out where she was. Sophy hurried into the long drawing room, now so tastefully enhanced by the art treasures imposed upon Piers by Willie Moppet, and found her husband in a very annoyed frame of mind. He had lost a great deal of money at Monte, and he wanted to know all about where she had been and with whom.

Almost indifferently Sophy told him the truth—at least a great part of it.

She had been to San Remo—gone over by herself—and there she had hoped to meet Mr. Brooke. They had been out in a rowing boat, and then they had come back by taxi.

Piers gasped at her in blank amazement. It took him some time to find words to express what he felt about this.

Afterwards Sophy came to the conclusion that she had been foolish. Her confession, such as it was, seemed a completely unnecessary business. How stupid it was to send Piers' jealousy off on the right scent, when by not mentioning Alan's name nothing would be suspected. Piers forgot that he had ever been jealous of Willie Moppet.

It was all very trying, but probably more so than it would have been had he not lost so heavily at the gaming tables. Piers Tancred was of that breed which habitually wins in games of chance, and today the tables had turned upon him cruelly. Also, that languid pessimist, the Earl of Landell, had snubbed him; had scarcely seemed to realize even that he was one of the party; and Piers felt convinced that Willie Moppet had invited him at the last moment merely to fill in. The lunch at the fabulously expensive Monte Carlo restaurant had disagreed with him, too. And now, Sophy.

She looked a little untidy because of her rumpled linen frock and wind-blown hair; the pleasant grubbiness of the returned picnic, in fact. Piers dragged it out of her about the basket lunch, which apparently and quite by accident had held sufficient provisions for two. She had to confess about that, because on the spur of the moment she hadn't time to think of a place in San Remo where she might have lunched, and from Piers' manner she knew that had she tried to make up anything he would have lost no time in proving her a liar.

On the face of it there was nothing radically wrong with her story which—as told to Piers—began with a more or less rational desire to explore San Remo, particularly the Old Town, and having nothing better to do, she and acted upon the impulse.

Well, no, she hadn't got very far in her explorations. Yes, she had met Alan Brooke down by the harbor, and there was Mr. Brooke with his lunch basket and a rowing boat, perhaps going out to study the sea for sculptural purposes. (This idea was a sarcastic suggestion of Piers.) And it was then about noon and he invited Sophy to go along with him and share his lunch.

"So I went," she said. "I didn't see any reason why I shouldn't. But Piers thought of any amount of reason, and he challenged Sophy to produce a single one that warranted her in doing such a thing. He saw through it all, said Piers. She had been madly anxious to get him out of the way for today (and, oh, how true that was!) so afraid that he wouldn't be asked to the Moppet foot party, and very likely it was entirely due to her wire pulling that he had been asked, although as it turned out he seemed to have been in luck."

"And now," he concluded in a passion of jealous rage, "this is the end of those so-called 'sittings,' where nothing has been done as far as I can see, and now I know why. It's all been fooling—fooling about as an excuse to see Brooke. I don't for a minute believe the man's a sculptor at all, and damned if I'll pay him a copper cent for whatever he pretends to be doing."

Had Sophy been as truly innocent as Piers in his heart believed her to be, and were Alan Brooke the equally innocent stranger with no more than a friendly or professional interest in her, Piers' high-handedness would have been cruelly embarrassing.

He was cunning enough to see this, and he waited for her indignant protest; waited for her to beg and plead with him not to rouse the righteous indignation of a man who had done nothing but was trying to get a little unconventional hospitality. He waited in vain, however.

Sophy merely said, a little wearily: "Oh, very well. Have it your own way. I'm going up to change my dress now."

Piers let her go and that, if she had stopped to think of it, was unequal, for the matter had been by no means threshed out in the customary way.

After she had gone he stood alone in the middle of the long drawing room staring at him in what seemed an aimless fashion. His mind was as unquiet as his body and at the present moment he was trying to connect up the various things that had happened since he bought this villa by the southern sea.

Through it all, like the music of the Spellman, ran the malicious interpolations of Mr. Moppet. Or could it be that Moppet was merely Lilla Brant's fool? It was Lilla Brant who had introduced Moppet, who in turn had led Piers into a desire to possess the Villa Mona.

And then there was the Princess Dobliver who on the night of Moppet's dinner party thought Sophy was Alan Brooke's wife. Piers was too dark of skin to turn pale, but suddenly he felt pale, and a sickish sensation it was.

Could it be possible, he wondered, that Sophy had known Brooke long before? Ten years ago in Paris, the Dobliver woman had said. So far the princess had not extended any sort of invitation to her, and that was rather odd. Ten years ago, in Paris . . . the war was on, then. It was a couple of years later, also in Paris, where she had been playing a small part in an English revue, that Piers had met her and rushed her into marriage before she had time to think about it. And she hadn't been in love with him, not a bit. She cried a great deal, and made him intensely jealous of her first husband who, she said, had been killed in the war. Brooke was in Paris 10 years ago, and so was Sophy. They might have met. They might even have been known in careless bohemian circles as man and wife. Oh, monstrous thought! And what about Brooke's taking the trouble to deliver a letter here in person the morning he was called away to Turin? True, there was nothing incriminating in the letter itself, but Sophy had been almighty suspicious about it. Hidden it in the bosom of her chemise, and threatened to scream if he touched her. Well, he had touched her and she hadn't screamed, and he had got possession of the letter in spite of her.

Who, if any one, could he trust? Not Lilla Brant, unless it were expedient for her to lend him out of this. Not Moppet, who was a blackmailer. But there was one person.

'B' Division has got Jim Gilbert's Goat!

THERE'S a great celebration on this morning at 11 o'clock. Jim Gilbert has lost his goat, and the winning trainmen of "B" division of your street railway system will parade by way of Edgewood avenue and Marietta street, over to the Ashby Street Car Barn, headquarters of "C" Division, and carry back the goat to their headquarters at the Piedmont Avenue Barn.

Jim Gilbert is Superintendent of "C" Division. He and his men held the safety record so many months that the animal has come to be known as "Jim Gilbert's Goat." But no more. Now it is Fred Simpson's goat—until some division breaks "B" Division's safety record.

Jim Gilbert and his men have held the goat only by the skin of their teeth—and by making a better record each month, with the other Divisions close behind. And "B" Division captured the goat by establishing in April one of the best No-Accident records in the history of the company.

A ONE-MAN CAR VICTORY

It is significant that both these divisions are predominantly one-man car divisions. Of the eight lines on the winning "B" Division, seven are one-man-car lines. And four out of seven of "C" Division's routes are one-man car routes. It is final proof that Safety Cars are safe. It demonstrates that one-man cars are safer, as well as larger, faster, finer and more attractive than the older cars.

The Battle of the Divisions is still on. The race never ends. The men never cease to strive for improved safety records, and the spirit is as real as a Tech-Georgia game. All of the men are members of Safety teams, and there is keen competition among the teams, as well as among the Divisions, for the monthly safety record.

Daily meetings of teams and larger groups are held. New men are given special safety training—and the instruction never stops. Every accident, no matter how trivial, is studied and analyzed to prevent similar accidents in the future. Under the capable leadership of Mr. W. J. Rountree, formerly of the Georgia Tech faculty, and a recognized authority in this work, the drive for your safety goes on.

All of this work to make your street car service safer each month, to reduce the accidents in spite of the tremendous increase in traffic congestion in the downtown streets, is only a part of our consistent effort to give Atlanta street car service that is worthy to be called the:

One-Man Car Division Wins Safety Honors for April

FRED SIMPSON,
Superintendent of "B" Division, which defeated the other Divisions in the accident reduction campaign in April.

He's the symbol of victory, but he's no mere symbolical goat. He is a very alive and fragrant goat, who makes his home at the barn of the Division which has made the best safety record during the preceding month.

JIM GILBERT, Superintendent of "C" Division, which had held the safety championship and the goat continuously since November.

Routes in "B" Division.

West Peachtree-East Hunter, one-man cars.
Luckie Street-Grant Park, one-man cars.
Cooper Street-Pine Street, one-man cars.
Orme Street-Magnolia Street, one-man cars.
Piedmont Avenue-Washington Street, one-man cars.
College Park and Hapeville.
Stewart Avenue, one-man cars.
Buckhead-Oglethorpe, one-man cars.

Routes in "C" Division.

Decatur-East Fair-Marietta Street.
West Fair Street, one-man cars.
South Decatur-East Lake.
English Avenue-Soldiers' Home, one-man cars.
McDaniel Street.
Stone Mountain, one-man cars.
Atlanta Northern, one-man cars.

You have benefited from this competition among the Divisions for safety honors and the goat.

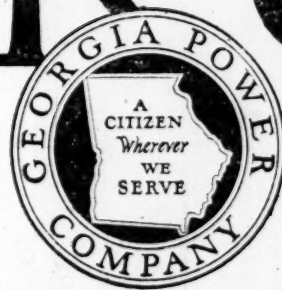

You have had safer service every month this year than the preceding month because of the efforts your trainmen are making to prevent accidents. Following is the record made by entire street railway system:

February	2388	2484	9028

Atlanta Man's Patent Is One That Will Make Him Famous

The progress of the world is due in large measure to the thinking men and women who are always seeking better ways to accomplish any given task in less than the standard time allowed to perform such work.

The inventor must always work, and face the fact that his invention has not been proven a complete success, unless it does the work equally as well as it was done before and he succeeded in increasing the production.

An Atlanta man, R. F. Knox, who has been engaged in the sheet metal business here for 35 years, has invented many worthwhile improvements made of metal, but his latest invention, the Knox Metal Flash Lock, promises to make him famous the country over.

Great Improvement. This metal flashing is a great improvement over the common way of "scratching" in small pieces of tin or galvanized iron in the seams of any job where a new roof is being put on a building.

Under Mr. Knox's patent he makes these improved flashings in his fine, modern shop at Marietta street, Atlanta.

is no possible place for water to drive under and cause leaks, just where leaks are most commonly found.

Mr. Knox has always been well aware of the source of roof troubles in making water-tight flashings around parapet walls, and his new patented flash lock solves the problem completely for architects and builders and saves much labor at the same time.

The flash locks can be made of tin, or any thickness of galvanized iron, copper or sheet lead, and the roofing can be of any other proper material the architect specifies.

Specified. Two well-known southern engineering firms, Robert & Co. and Lockwood, Greene & Co., as well as many of the leading architects, are specifying the Knox flash locks on buildings now being built.

As this flash lock if made of copper or of lead will last a very long time and is better and cost less than the present method of making flashings Mr. Knox has given to the building world an improvement method of doing a class of work that has been done for ages and ages and just as much as every architect and builder in this country looks into the merit of his improved flash lock, that soon he will convince himself it is a great improvement in every way over the old method of preventing leaky roofs where they join to the brick walls.

Advantages Obvious. The advantage in this must be obvious to all, for as soon as the bricklayer puts the mortar for the next row of brick on top of these metal strips, which lock into the wall itself, it becomes locked into the wall itself and there

Great Benefits Should Result From Milk Week

EDITED BY M. D. GLEASON

BY M. D. GLEASON.

The week just closed in Atlanta and vicinity is one that should mark an epoch in the south, for, as every wide-awake person knows the city of Atlanta and Fulton, DeKalb and Cobb counties, with the state and government cooperating, put on a very successful educational campaign in the "Milk for Health Week."

The national, state, city and county leaders and their many able and energetic co-workers who so intelligently presented the advantages of using more milk for health sake to so many thousands of people should be warmly congratulated for the good work they have done in the cause of humanity.

The many stockholders are entitled to praise for the valuable window space they placed at the disposal of those having the matter in charge, and the city and county leaders who were very generous with their space in presenting the entire effort to be as big a success as the originators of the movement would have possibly hoped for or expected.

Now History. Now, however, last week is a matter of history, and if good results are to be obtained from the splendid effort, it rests with the people themselves. The heads of every household should, as far as their means allow, provide more milk for their children, the aged or undernourished members in their care.

While it is understood that several other cities and counties in the state will put on a milk for health week, it is earnestly hoped that leading citizens and civic leaders will lead the way to start a movement looking to a milk for health week in their community for health is wealth no matter where a free American may live.

If the mothers of Atlanta, white and colored, will make an extra effort to give their children more pure milk, the next few years there will be a big decrease in infant mortality and they will have healthy children who are better able to combat many kinds of sickness, and what applies to Atlanta applies elsewhere just as well.

If we try to estimate the good last week's work has done in a cold dollar and cents manner it might run into millions of dollars for the south, for the more people who drink milk means more cows for the south and if there is one thing needed in the south it is good dairy cows.

Three Interviews. Saturday morning three well known men in touch with dairy business of this state were interviewed about what they thought of the good results of the milk for health week. The first was A. L. Burdette, advertising man.

BUILDING LOAN ASSOCIATIONS ARE HELPING AMERICA

In a recent issue of the Wall Street Magazine is a timely article on building and loan associations that will be of much interest to many Atlanta people. The article is considering the best plan whereby they may start to pay on a home of their own.

The article in question is as follows: Building and loan association shares are the great American investment. Apart from the central machinery of Wall Street no other class of commitments can begin to rival the building and loan associations in popularity and investment merit.

Scattered throughout the length and breadth of the land, they represent fundamentally the wish of the great body of men to put their savings into something they know intimately. The great majority of these associations allow the investor to direct and manage the investment of the enterprise. Of equal importance with the investment assets is the service a home building offered by the building and loan associations.

Building and loan associations are an ideal foundation for patriotism and good fellowship, in addition to their investment and home-building merits. It may well be doubted if any other single human activity does so much to build up the constructive factors in the nation's life.

The future growth of the United States is unthinkable without the great work done by these cooperative institutions.

A good working definition of a building and loan association would be as given in the following phrase: An organization for mutual savings where profits arise from real estate loans, almost exclusively on homes, the principal of the loans being repayable in small periodic installments.

They show the smallest percentage of failures of any investment whatever. In Atlanta the Columbia Building and Loan association, located at 5 Carnegie way, is headed by men who ager for the International Harvester company, on Whitehall street.

Mr. Burdette stated, "I was keenly interested in this movement from the beginning, as it was right along the line our big company is doing in several cities, and we ourselves some 30 or 40 days ago put in our front show windows a miniature model dairy farm, conveying the idea, where there are good cows there are contented people."

"My position requires considerable traveling," continued Mr. Burdette, "and as soon as I came in sight of several cows grazing in a pasture I know that their owner is the man that lives up the road in the painted house that shows an air of prosperity around it, and his crops look good. I am very enthusiastic about the good that will result from last week's work."

A. I. Steinhilber, president of the Dairy & Farm Supply company of 223 Grimes street, was next seen and he was heard in his praise for the work he assisted in any way in the way of the movement. He predicted great benefits will follow if other cities and counties will follow the lead of the Capital City.

Mr. Steinhilber said that for 15 years he has been pointing out to the people of Georgia and the south that the farmer or suburban man that can keep one or more cows will be better able to live at home and will be more prosperous than those who must run to the store for every meal.

J. Frank Beck, president of the Atlanta municipal market, was the third man seen. Mr. Beck, who is a former president of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, and an active civic leader in Atlanta for the past 40 years, was very enthusiastic about the great benefits that will result to come from this Milk for Health week.

"Probably no large city in this country needed this educational health campaign more than did Atlanta," stated Mr. Beck, "for we were listed as in need to use twice as much milk as we had been using, to come up to the average milk consumption of cities of about the same size."

"We have in our big city market about 20 farmers who sell milk and they tell me that they are selling more than twice as much milk as they formerly did; that we were encouraging more milk production, and that there are many poor and undernourished people within easy walking distance of the municipal market and we will make it as convenient as we can for everybody to get the freshest milk our farmers bring in. We hope that the consumption of milk will increase until we head the list and be up where the Atlanta rightfully belongs, in health and wealth."

FRUIT GROWERS USE METAL TAGS IN BUSY SEASON

Many years ago nearly all peaches shipped from this state were picked and packed by members of the family and ordinary farm help. Nowadays the grower lets this work out to a contractor, and, as the job runs into "considerable money," he has to keep tabs on all details.

Many growers give each picker a number. This number shows on a badge (either metal or celluloid) and each one is also furnished with a quantity of metal tags showing his number. One tag is turned in with each basket of fruit. In this way both the picker and grower can keep an accurate record without the complication that may otherwise result.

The Dixie Seal & Stamp company, at 33 Poplar street, Atlanta, has helped quite a number of growers smoothly. The metal tags are made of aluminum, which is light and also not easily "soiled," they are embossed with clear type, and it is impossible to duplicate them.

Write to them for samples and prices, mentioning quantity that you need.

MAN SEEKING WORK KILLED BY TRAIN IN MACON YARDS

Macon, Ga., May 15.—(P)—While on his way to the railroad shops here yesterday, hoping to find employment, H. L. Galloway, 35, of Bishopville, S. C., stepped out of the way of one train into the path of another. He was badly mangled and died in a hospital a short time later.

Galloway had just arrived here from Sanford, Fla., where he has a brother.

stand high in the business and professional circles of this fast growing city. The officials extend an invitation to all interested in owning a home to come by and look into the splendid plans they have to offer.

SOME DIFFERENCE IN ADVERTISING METHODS OF TIME

In the good old days the people had good old ways and the men wore knickerbockers and had buckles on their shoes. The merchants of that same period, about 1750, also had unique ways of advertising their merchandise to the people.

The common practice was for the merchant to stand outside his door and ring a loud tone bell, and cry out with a loud voice, "What d'ye lack? What d'ye lack?"

Could you imagine the spectacle today of every Whitehall, Peachtree, Broad, Marietta, Mitchell and Forsyth street merchant during a dull hour, standing in his doorway ringing a big bell and crying out "What d'ye lack? What d'ye lack?" or the merchant, doctor, dentist, beauty-shop owner, reaching out the second or third story window ringing at any and all times their bell and saying, "What d'ye lack? What d'ye lack?"

Again the real estate, bond firm, manufacturer representative or a lawyer, leaning out of a 16 or 17-story window with another kind of a bell hallooing out "What d'ye lack? What d'ye lack?"

We fancy that for an hour or two we would be greatly amused but after that, with the din and uproar, we would lack common sense.

With all due credit to those old boys who thought this the best way to advertise in their day and time, we are afraid that however loud they may have rung their bells or cried their wares they could not have been heard but a few "squares" away and would hardly reach the huge army that reads The Constitution all over the land.

Then, should perchance they have

The "Merrimack" and the "Monitor"—Part One.

by J. CARROLL MANSFIELD

WHEN THE STATE OF VIRGINIA SECEDED FROM THE UNION AND JOINED THE CONFEDERACY, THE FEDERAL ARMY ABANDONED THE GREAT COASTAL NAVY YARD NEAR NORFOLK. BEFORE THEIR DEPARTURE, THEY SET FIRE TO THE BUILDINGS AND BURNED AND SCUTTLED A NUMBER OF NAVAL VESSELS THAT COULD NOT BE REMOVED IN TIME (APRIL 20, 1861).

AFTER THE CONFEDERATES HAD TAKEN POSSESSION OF THE NAVY YARD THEY FOUND THAT THE "MERRIMACK," A FINE STEAM FRIGATE, HAD BEEN ONLY PARTIALLY DESTROYED. SHE WAS RAISED, PLACED IN DRYDOCK AND WORK WAS BEGUN TO RECONSTRUCT HER INTO A POWERFUL IRONCLAD RAM FROM DESIGNS OF CONFEDERATE NAVAL EXPERTS.

SHE PRESENTED A FORMIDABLE APPEARANCE WHEN COMPLETED. HER SLOPING IRON SIDES WERE INVULNERABLE TO CANNON FIRE AND HER HEAVY RIFLED GUNS AND IRON PROW FOR RAMMING MADE HER A DANGEROUS FIGHTING MACHINE. THE CONFEDERATES RENAMED HER "THE VIRGINIA," BUT IT IS BY HER ORIGINAL

NAME, "MERRIMACK," THAT SHE IS BETTER KNOWN IN HISTORY. THE DESIGNERS OF THE RAM HAD MUCH FAITH IN HER FIGHTING ABILITY, BUT MANY SOUTHERNERS RIDICULED HER CONSTRUCTION AND SOME OF THE CONFEDERATE NEWSPAPERS PROMISED SHE WOULD BE A "PERFECT FAILURE."

"Beware of Widows"—The successful production of comedies, with Madge Kennedy and Sidney Blackmer playing leading roles in each one have convinced producer Charles L. Wagner that Atlanta is the best of places for that sort of stage presentation, so this week at the new theater on Peachtree street will be given over to "Beware of Widows," a rollicking farce from the pen of Owen Davis. Miss Kennedy, starred in "Beware of Widows" when it opened in New York. Seats are on sale at the box office of the Erlanger theater and at M. Rich & Bros. Co. store.

Rialto.

The story opens up with Griffith sound asleep at a friend's wedding but from that point on little sleeping is done as Griffith labors furiously and unapologetically to save his best pal from the machinations of a blonde vamp and to win a champion of the same preferred coloring for himself. "Wedding Bells" is accompanied by a Mermaid comedy called "Hot and Heavy."

Forsyth.

"Charlie's Aunt" (B. Stock). Annie arrives from Brazil and to behold there is "Babs" doing his stuff. Sure enough, Fred Raymond, as friend of two buddies in need of a chaperon, fills in—and there you have it. A great comedy as ever was conceived in a man's mind—rich, rare, racy and light, with romance and pathos so blended that the most sophisticated couldn't refrain from laughing out a couple of good whoops. Every member of the Forsyth cast will be pressed into service.

Loew's Grand.

Vaudeville and Pictures—Mike Ames, famous impersonator in "Fascinating Females," heads the bill of vaudeville at Loew's Grand theater this week. Ames is hailed as the successor to Julian Eltinge. On the stage bill will be Paul Reed & Company; Benice and Baird; Tuck and Gains; and the Four Garters. The picture for the week is "The Devil's Bride."

Howard.

"The Love Thrill"—Gertrude Ederle, hailed as sports hero of 1926, will appear in person at the Howard theater this week in her own thrilling aquatic stage presentation, "Where's 'Waddy' Wadsworth?" Chicago Welcomes Italian Aviator.

(By Leased Wire to The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.)

Chicago, May 15.—(Special.)—Commander Francesco de Pinedo, returning to Rome, made his last landing in the United States here this afternoon.

The Italian ace was delayed by heavy head winds in his flight from Memphis and the hundreds of black-shirted fascists and others waiting to greet the flyers shivered for five hours in and about the Chicago yacht club until his arrival.

Landed in a coast guard boat and attended by an official committee, de Pinedo was the center of a stampede of the respectable patriots, the fascists, headed by Dr. Hugo Galli, who had come to guard and escort the ace from his protective function and pressed about him seeking to hug or a Latin kiss. Only by strong arm methods were a handful of policemen able to keep de Pinedo from physical damage through an excess of affection.

De Pinedo and his crew, Captain Del Piero and Vitale Zaccchetti, will take off for Montreal early tomorrow morning. From that point they will go to New York and take off for the Azores on his way to Paris.

The masses of the colored people will have to work with their hands for the next 70 years, the majority of the colored youth who are in the schools should be given an opportunity of learning a useful trade, and he fit for the duties of life," Rev. RUSSIA PREPARES BRITAIN WARNED

NOTE OF PROTEST BY EUGENE CHEN

Moscow, Russia, May 15.—(AP)—The wave of indignation is gathering force in Russia as news of the British raid on Soviet home in London spreads throughout the union and is finding expression in street demonstrations, editorial tirades and cabaret articles taxing the resources of the most vitriolic writers and cartoonists.

The newspapers are filled with resolutions of protest from scores of workers' unions, army units and organized bodies of every conceivable sort, denouncing England, demanding a commercial boycott, and emphasizing the necessity of Russia being prepared to resist by all means British aggression.

Meanwhile the government is laboring to keep its nerves from being overtaxed by the news of the raid, and the note, it is announced, soon will be handed to the British representative here.

A great demonstration in Moscow yesterday, lasting well into the night, developed minor skirmishes with the guards when a mass of students and workers sought to rush the police lines in the neighborhood of the British mission. Reinforcements and troops restored order at the expense of a few minor injuries to the demonstrators.

For some unexplained reason, the Polish mission came in for the attention of the marchers, who were crying "Down with the Poles as well as the British."

Practically all the morning papers carried cartoons, caricaturing the British prime minister, Stanley Baldwin, Sir Austen Chamberlain, Sir William Joynson-Hicks, who are held responsible for the raid. One cartoon depicted the three equipped with burglar tools and a crowbar, and another showed Joynson-Hicks in the act of knocking off a cask of gunpowder with a torch.

Forgery Charged.

The papers editorially made reference to alleged forged documents and the alleged forgery of a Russian communiqué, which, it is predicted, will be proved elsewhere. The rumor of Lavstsky's (Cholchovsk) official organ) is being spread by the British press, which declares that the London policy was directed by the die-hards, and had been pursued so far toward violation of the principles of international agreements and ordinary decency that not a single fair-minded leader dare justify or defend the "insane" policy.

The paper charged: "The Soviets are not to be tricked by rough provocations. While deep indignation pervades the mass of workers, as evidenced by the recent demonstration, the Soviet government will continue to take measures to safeguard the reputation of the country to which the union is loyal, and to spare them the indignities to which the agents of the greatest proletarian republic have been subjected."

"The moment the English government and the bourgeois classes supporting it must understand that maintenance of the Anglo-Russian agreement is not less important to England than the Soviet union. If England refuses to take steps to correct the results of the violation of that agreement, the Soviet government will transfer of commercial transactions elsewhere."
